

Suzie's Choking Experience In Her Own Words

by Suzie; submitted by Tracy Ramsey Meadows

Tuesday morning started out like any other day. Mom came downstairs, I got excited and jumped off my kitty condo, ran through my tunnel, and rushed to the top level of my Cottontail Cottage. This is where mom gives me about a teaspoon of my pellets. She saves the rest for my playtime at night. She sprinkles them in my ball pit and litter box of hay. As usual, I started inhaling my pellets like I hadn't eaten in weeks.

Mom went to get my salad and then everything got scary. I started sneezing and ran to the downstairs of my cottage. Mom thought I stuck my nose in my water bowl at first, but I kept sneezing, so she ran to check on me. I had tried to eat so fast that I got choked on my pellets. I was starting to drool everywhere and shaking my head. Mom pulled me out of my kingdom (aka my pen), put me on her arm and held me tight with her other hand (supporting my head, neck, and back) and started swinging me downward towards the floor. That's the last thing I remember. She said my eyes rolled back in my head, I was drooling everywhere, my mouth was wide open, and I went limp. She thought I died. Next thing I remember, dad is there wiping my face and looking worried. Mom remembered reading about the bunny Heimlich Manuever at some point. She said she didn't remember all of it, but remembered enough.

After mom posted a video of me talking about my bad day, she said so many other people commented on how they lost their bunny due to choking, or was able to save their bunny because they had seen the instructional video on the bunny Heimlich, or they had no idea it could happen. So mom asked me to share my experience in hopes it would help other people save more bunnies. It is a terrifying experience for everyone involved. Mom said she's only going to give me pellets in my ball pit or hay from now on. You can also use a treat ball if your bunny is a pig, too.

After your bunny has a choking experience, you need to take your bunny to the vet. There are many things that can happen, including pneumonia and antibiotics will be needed. In my case, it caused some sinus issues, so I'm taking antibiotics for that. I'm not happy about it and I am making mom work hard to get it in me, but I am taking it.

Please watch and/or read the information attached. And please share this story far and wide, not so I can become a bigger celebrity, but to save other bunnies.

<http://www.vgr1.com/choking/>

Follow Suzie at The Bossy Bunny: <https://www.facebook.com/TheBossyBunny/>

$30*

*Plus postage & packing the calendars are posted from Australia

2017 Vegan Calendar
Plus a set of 8 Bookmarks

OR

$20*

*Plus postage & Handling the calendars are posted from Australia

2017 Vegan Calendar
HURRAY!!

LIMITED STOCK

How To Order online:

1. Visit: www.artbyyollie.weebly.com
2. Click on: (SCROLL TO BOTTOM OF SCREEN)
3. Select "SHIPPING" in the Shipping & Packaging drop-down box.

THANK YOU FOR SUPPORTING MISS P'S. PASSION PROJECT AND BIG EARS SANCTUARY INC.